Course Outline	This course is designed to examine the role and status of Korea and Japan in the current world, where 'globalization' and 'rocalization' are taking place at the same time. In particular, this course will encourage students to understand the history and the meaning of interactions between the two countries and the international community since the end of the Cold War, by focusing on the relationships between Korea/Japan and the US, China, and International institutions. Lastly, this course will discuss the role the Korea-Japan bilateral relationship has played in the international society during the post-Cold War period.
